Holy Communion

Every Christian who is baptized and a communicant in his or own congregation is welcome to receive Holy Communion. The Sacrament is offered in both kinds, bread and wine. If you choose not to receive the wine, please fold your arms, and remain at the rail to hear the words of administration. If the rail is full to the middle, please go as far to the left as possible before you kneel so that others will not have to walk over your legs.

* St. Mark the Evangelist, normally observed on April 25, is this year observed on Tuesday April 29 (See rubric on page 95 of the Prayer Book).

from The Crown of the Year by Austin Farrer, weekly paragraphs on the Holy Sacrament. We do not know what happened when Jesus Christ rose from the dead; that is God's secret. We do not know, that is, what happened to him, what change he underwent, what it was like for him to rise. We know some of the things that happened to his disciples, what he caused them to see, to touch and to hear. Through the signs of his presence which he bestowed, he made them understand at least this about himself: the whole Jesus who had lived with them before his passion was again alive, and with them again; nothing had been lost where everything had been glorified. We break the bread on the altar for the death of Christ, but presently we mingle wine and bread to figure the coming together again of flesh and blood in the wholeness of Christ's resurrection. And then we take to ourselves the words he spoke to the Twelve in the upper room: The peace of the Lord be always with you.
