light Of this our wintry world, Thy radiance bright Awakes new joy an faith, hope soars above. Come, quickly come, and let thy glory shine, Gliding our darksome heaven with rays divine. Thu saints with holy lustre round thee move, As stars about thy throne, set in the height Of God's ordaining counsel, as thy sight Gives measured grace to each, thy power to prove. Let thy bright beams disperse the gloom of sin, Our natures all shall feel eternal day, In fellowship with thee, transforming day To souls ere while unclean, now pure within. Amen.

* St Michael & All Angels

from The Crown of the Year by Austin Farrer, weekly paragraphs on the Holy Sacrament. Christ gives himself to you under the signs of bread and wine. The food is assimilated, it loses its own nature and takes on yours. So with the life of Christ bestowed on you: it takes on the forms of your life and action, not (at first sight) the forms of Christ's. Men nourished on the life of Christ are more fully themselves for the gift; their personal quality is stronger, freer, more characteristic. Christ's self-giving is self-effacing, he does not impose himself, he studies his disciples. But with what effect? Not that he is moulded to them, but that they are moulded to him. The strongest influence is exercised by the man who gives himself entirely away and does not think of himself. So it is with the love of God. He becomes as we, that he may make us as himself.
